The couple is accused of giving the six teens alcohol and forcing them to strip and touch one another, police said.

The parents of the six children had paid Woo Yi more than $15,000 each to host the children so they could attend local high schools, police said. The students attended different schools in Gwinnett County, authorities said.

On Wednesday, one of the teens complained to a school employee of abuse at their host home, police said.

The victims told school officials, and eventually detectives, that their host family would provide them with alcohol and have them play games, Gwinnett County Police spokesman Cpl. Jake Smith said.
