

THE RESPONSIBLE CORPORATE OFFICER DOCTRINE—CAN YOU GO TO JAIL FOR WHAT YOU DON'T KNOW?

BY JOSEPH G. BLOCK* AND NANCY A. VOISIN
VENABLE, BAETJER, HOWARD & CIVILETTI

Reproduced with the Permission of the Northwestern
School of Law of Lewis and Clark College.

Reprinted with permission from Environmental Law, Northwestern School of Law of Lewis and Clark College, Fall 1992

* Partner, Environmental Group, Washington, D.C. office, Venable, Baetjer, Howard & Civiletti. Former Chief of the Environmental Crimes Section of U.S. Department of Justice and Special Assistant for Criminal Enforcement at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

 Attorney, Environmental and Litigation Groups, Washington, D.C. office, Venable, Baetjer, Howard & Civiletti. The authors wish to thank Judson W. Starr, a partner in the firm's Environmental Group and Maria Harris Tildon, an attorney in the firm's Environmental and Litigation Groups for their assistance in preparing this article.